MISSION FIRST - PEOPLE ALWAYS

Swearing in at Memphis MEPS station.

"Our Sailors, Navy civilians, and their families underpin our Maritime Strategy and are the foundation of our nation's global force for good. We have great ships, aircraft, weapons, and systems, but it is our skilled and innovative Sailors who turn these ships, aircraft, and technologies into capabilities that can prevent conflict and win wars."

Adm. Gary Roughead, Chief of Naval Operations9 March 2010

I. Introduction – Why an HR Strategic Plan?

Today, America faces unique national security challenges. These include global population changes, serious economic difficulties at home and abroad, bids for regional and global power, the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and a global struggle against terrorism and irregular warfare. In addition to these challenges, the military must compete for resources and operate within a world where the exceptional rate of technological change outpaces capabilities and policies. The U.S. Navy plays a vital part in meeting these national security challenges by executing its mission areas throughout the globe on a daily basis.

To successfully execute its mission and meet its goals, objectives and priorities, the U.S. Navy must have a highly competent and efficient workforce prepared to meet a variety of challenges and changing objectives. The Human Resources (HR) community is pivotal to accomplishing these objectives by executing policies and programs to attract, recruit, develop, assign and retain the best possible enlisted, officer, and civilian personnel to best support the organization. With the maximization of our available human resources, our Navy can gain the edge and create optimal readiness and improved capability to meet our global objectives. The Navy must create a human capital investment strategy capable of placing the right people with the right skills, at the right time and place, and at the best value, to execute its global missions.

Rear Admiral Cynthia Covell

II. Message from HR Community Leadership

(Rear Admiral Cynthia Covell)

We, as Navy Human Resource Officers, must be the leaders in developing and executing HR solutions to build and sustain the Navy Total Force (NTF) now and in the future. Every HR officer must fully contribute to achieve our vision of being the "recognized leaders in Navy and Joint Human Resource solutions."

As the Department of Defense continuously balances warfighting requirements in a constrained fiscal environment, HR officers must be at the forefront helping to grow and shape the force at the best value to our Nation. Our community mission to "deliver HR expertise to define, recruit, develop, assign and retain a highly skilled workforce" requires each one of us be get involved in executing this Strategic Plan.

The plan is a "Call to Action" for all HR officers. Our focus will be to continue to operationalize work-life balance and continuum of service initiatives, fully integrating HR processes for the Navy Total Force (active, reserve and government civilians). All HR Officers must work actively to execute this plan. Each of us must represent the HR community within Navy and DoD and engage throughout the Fleet to apply our skills where they are needed the most.

Finally, we must not only continue to perform to the very best of our ability in every assignment, but we must also continue to develop skills to be the very best at what we do. Each of us must continue to enhance our knowledge, skills and abilities in our chosen field. This includes focusing on Continuous Process Improvements (CPI) and staying abreast of new and innovative HR solutions. HR certification is highly valued as is advanced education in an HR field. Expertise in our four core competency areas is critical to our future success. You must strive to become the "go to" HR expert. In addition, we must continue to strengthen our alignment with the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey. Our strong connection to the Graduate School of Business and Public Policy and our link to the HR Center of Excellence (HRCOE) is critical to sustain our competitive edge. Thesis topics must remain relevant to current MPTE Issues and the HRCOE will continue to grow as our center of continuous learning and resource repository.

III. Overarching Guidance and HR Community Role

The Human Resources Community (120X) is one of the Department of the Navy's most strategic and critical assets in the provision of manpower, personnel, training, and education (MPTE) expertise in support of DoN mission accomplishment. It has been charged with "delivering HR expertise to define, recruit, develop, assign, and retain a highly-skilled workforce for the Navy Total Force mission." To further support the overall MPTE domain, the HR Community's established vision and strategic priorities are aligned with the Navy's Total Force Vision for the 21st Century (NTF-21) and Navy Personnel Command's 2020 Vision.

IV. Human Resources Community History

The Active Component HR designator 1200 was established in October 2001 to respond to the growing demands for specialized skills in human resource strategy and analysis. Total Force integration required harnessing expertise from all components--active, reserve, civilian, and contractor. In February 2007, the Reserve Component HR designators 1205/1207 were established. In July 2007, the HR Executive Board and Board of Directors convened to provide continued leadership and vision to the community's development.

V. HR Community Leadership Construct

The HR Community Sponsor is the Chief of Naval Personnel.

The HR Community Advisor is designated by the HR Community Sponsor as the lead HR Flag Officer to make decisions, implement initiatives, and establish priorities specifically focused on the Navy HR Community.

The HR Community is represented by HR Flag Officers from the 1200 and 1205 designators. The HR Admirals are intimately involved in determining HR Community priorities, establishing our vision and missions, and directing and guiding our community's efforts to execute HR service delivery to the Fleet, Sailors and our Families.

The HR Executive Board is a team of senior HR leaders that assists our community sponsor and flag leadership to recommend, guide, and oversee actions and policies governing all HR mission areas.

The HR Board of Directors is a team of senior HR leaders representing each of the HR Community Core Competency Areas: Management, Development, Requirements and Recruiting. The HR Board of Directors provides information and updates to the EB and HR Community Advisor on the strategies, initiatives, and activities of each represented competency area.

The HR Regional Captain Network. Within each Navy Region, there is a senior HR Officer assigned as the Regional Captain. The Regional Captain is responsible for the strategic communications and dissemination of community information within their respective geographic region. Types of information sharing include CCAs, billet assignments, individual career management and development, mentoring, Brown Bag luncheons, and networking.

VI. Navy Strategic Imperatives

The success of the HR Strategic Plan is directly tied to the success of NTF-21. As the Navy HR Strategic Plan is a living document, it will be reviewed and updated as required to support and align to the Navy mission.

NTF-21 Strategic Imperatives:

- Responsive to the Joint Warfighter
- · Competitive for the Best Talent in the Nation
- Diverse
- A Learning Organization
- · Leader in Human Resource Solution

NTF-21 Key Enablers:

- · Innovation and Collaboration
- Fiscal Discipline
- · Work and Workforce described by Competencies
- Supportive Information Technology Solutions

Execution Plan

Document Purpose

The following execution plan is the operational document for the Navy Human Resources Community Strategic Plan from May 2010. Its purpose is to support the delivery of the agreed upon strategic objectives and is intended to be a dynamic, living document which will provide flexibility to meet emerging requirements and changes in the manpower, personnel, training and education environment.

The 2009 graduating class from the U.S. Naval Academy throw their hats in celebration as they are newly commissioned officers in the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps.

Execution Plan Outputs

The Navy Human Resources Community Strategic Plan was created to serve as a roadmap for the HR community to define our priorities, chart a course for the Navy Total Force, and direct our future efforts. The execution plan will implement this strategy and institutionalize HR service delivery to the fleet, our Sailors, and their Families. This document is the framework to identify focus areas and actions. The recommended coordinating offices/organizations may not be all-inclusive, but should function as a starting point for action officers charged with implementation efforts.
